REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: All pending claims 1, 3-7, 9-13, 17-20, 22-26, and 28-31 have been carefully considered by the examiner.

The present invention is directed towards a method, system and user interface which selects a skinnable interface based on user specific information and behavioral logic. The behavioral logic associates the user as a customer of a given business partner.

Independent claims 1 and 20 recite the limitations, "determining a selected user interface skin from a plurality of UI skins based on said user specific information", wherein said user specific information comprises behavioral logic available on said computing resource, said behavioral logic associating said user to said selected UI skin", "wherein said user specific behavioral logic associates a user as a customer of said selected business partner", and wherein said user purchased said computing resource from said selected business partner". Independent claim 13 also recites similar limitations.

Selecting a skin (look and feel) for a user interface based on user specific information is known in the art. A prior art of record, Lillie et al. (US 2005/0065913 A1), teaches a method of determining the identity of a user and loading a profile, which defines the skin of an application, based on the identity of the user. However, Lillie fails to disclose associating behavioral logic where the behavioral logic associates a user as a customer of selected business partner and wherein said user purchased said computing resource from said selected business partner.

Upon a detailed search of the prior art, no reference were found to teach determining a user interface skin for an application running on a computing resource based on user specific information which defines behavioral logic that associates the user as purchasing the computing resource from a business partner. Therefore independent claims 1, 13, and 20, and all dependent claims 3-7, 9-12, 17-19, 22-26, and 28-31, are allowable over the prior art.

Conclusion

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
